PREFACE.

THE nucleus of the present Collection was formed in the late fifties or early sixties, when Colonel Evans was quartered with his regiment, the 9th Lancers, in Egypt. The Colonel frequently revisited Egypt between the years 1870 and 1900 and materially added to the Collection on those occasions. From 1880 onwards he was in frequent touch with Professors Griffith, Newberry and Sir Flinders Petrie, whose friendly advice on many occasions was doubtless of considerable service.

When, in 1895, the Burlington Fine Arts Club held its first exhibition of Egyptian antiquities, Colonel Evans was one of the chief contributors, and the bulk of his exhibits are included in the present catalogue.

The little Naos with folding doors (lot 78) is the subject of an illustrated article in the "Proceedings of the Society of British Archaeology," and has been described by Sir Flinders Petrie as "very rare, if not unique." The small silver Gods (lots 248-255) and the large steatite amulet with incised designs (lot 95) are also special features; while quite a number of the Scarabs are mentioned in Newberry's well-known work. Perhaps, however, the outstanding object is the glazed faience Bowl (lot 113), which forms the frontispiece of this catalogue; an object not less rare than beautiful. Chalices of a similar character have been described, but we cannot recall another example, with figures in relief, of a glazed ware bowl of the present type.
